HR functions are very crucial for achieving HR goals and effectiveness. Having competent and willing work force at all times is the purpose of all HR activities. Each and every HR function has its own goal and role. Identifying the right source of recruitment and selecting competent workforce is the goal of HR recruitment activity. Each HR activity effectiveness is measured through the HR Audit.

HR Audit helps to identify the HR efficiency in terms of HR cost and benefit. Learned and knowledge organisations adopted virtual HR Audit of all HR functions with a view to integrate HR strategies with corporate strategy. The role of HR Audit is more pronounced in knowledge sector where skill and knowledge competence is the name of the game for organisational success. The intervention of analytics and AI in the HR Audit process resulted in cost competency and generation of new revenue models in MNC's. Top management HR professionals comprehended the significance of HR Audit for achieving HR competitiveness and overall organisational competency and performance. Interestingly, the role of Centrally affiliated Trade Unions is losing their lustre and momentum in view of analytics and AI intervention in HR Audit process and also on account of the presence of knowledge workers who negotiate directly with top management authorities to resolve any HR related issues. HR Audit has been redefined in view of changing paradigms in technologies, profile of workforce dynamics and workplace dynamics.

Questions:

- Identify the changing role of HR Audit in the above case.
 - How have the new found technologies created a new environment for HR Audit.
 - Why is the role of Trade Unions declining? What are the causes? Advise the reasons in light of the above case.
